YOUR TASKS

You are part of a cross-functional project team, for example with software developers, QA engineers and agile project managers.

You are, as an IT Consultant, a technical and subject-specific consultant to our customers from several industries, from scoping to bringing it live and beyond.

You define technical solutions as well as system architectures and model business processes, for example in the e-commerce sector.

Through professional requirements management in constant exchange with the customer and the creation of software specifications, you have a decisive influence on the success of our projects with the technical solutions you develop.

In order to stay up to date with the latest technology, you have the opportunity to co-program proofs of concepts and to support code reviews.

You evaluate new technologies and strengthen the development of technological skills in the team.

Your communication skills and your ability to enjoy dealing with customers will help you to develop optimal e-commerce solutions together with the project team.

In the role of a technical product owner, you advise on prioritizing the features and thus assume responsibility for optimal e-commerce solutions.

YOUR PROFILE

Excellent communication skills and enjoy giving technical advice to customers.

Several years of experience as an IT consultant or software architect in a professional environment.

Experience in agile software development with Java, enterprise content management systems, enterprise e-commerce systems or headless frontends

Experience in requirements engineering and agile scope management.

Enthusiasm for agile work and innovative methods and technologies.

Good verbal and written language skills in German and English.
